

PRESS RELEASE

JEWISH FAMILY SERVICE OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS

Contact: Galina Abashina, Marketing and Development Coordinator, (413) 455-1936 x106

Date: April 7, 2017

Springfield – Did you know that Jews are at higher risk to develop hereditary breast and ovarian cancer than the rest of the population? One in 40 Ashkenazi Jews- men and women- carries a BRCA gene mutation, nearly 10 times the rate of the general population. Recent studies show that Sephardic Jews may also be genetically predisposed to hereditary breast and ovarian cancer.

To learn more, join Jewish Family Service of Western Massachusetts, Family Cancer Risk Program of Baystate Medical Center and Temple Beth El for Jewish Genetics 101: What you should know about breast cancer and inheritance on Wednesday, May 24, 2017, 7:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. in Temple Beth El Social Hall, 979 Dickinson Street, Springfield, MA. Free and open to the public.

Staff from the Family Cancer Risk Program of Baystate Medical Center will present on the BRCA genes, associated cancer risks, when to test, family history, options for treatment, emotional consequences and insurance concerns. National resources will be available and time will be set aside for questions and answers with experts in the field. Light refreshments will be served.

Please pre-register. Email info@jfswm.org or call 413.737.2601.

Sponsored by Jewish Family Service of Western MA, Family Cancer Risk Program of Baystate Medical Center, and Temple Beth El.
